

Nathan Paul Schwartz

February 19, 1978 - February 16, 2022

Nathan Paul Schwartz, 43, passed away unexpectedly on February 16, 2022 at his residence. Nathan was born on February 19, 1978 in Madison, Wisconsin, the son of Ralph Stephen Schwartz and Mary Schroeder Huberty.

He was skilled at many trades, learned them quickly and worked mainly in roofing, tile work and home construction for various employers. Nathan had a heart of gold and a kind spirit and struggled with drug addiction for many years recently dealing with the challenges that recovery can bring. He never fully recovered from the unexpected loss of the love of his life, Lena Riederer.

Nathan had a very eclectic love for a broad range of music and acquired a large collection of vinyl as a hobby in recent years. Nathan played dartball and horseshoes in leagues in the city. He was a member of Brothertown Indian Nation. He had a special love for many of his feline pets. His smile could light up a room and his stunning hazel/green eyes could change color based on his mood.

He is survived by his parents, stepfather Robert Huberty, his brother Justin (Sarah Sonsalla), nephews Cole and Logan Schwartz, and step-niece Kiley Wagner. He is further survived by aunts and uncles, Joe Schroeder, Elaine (Duane) Rebek, Sue (Robert) Steinbarth, Mary (Timothy) Klima, Cecelia (Andy) Preston, Tony (Mary) Schwartz and Tess (Mark) Wagner.

He was preceded in death by his paternal and maternal grandparents.

“ There is something incredibly special about grade school classmates. Nate and I attended Roberts School together, and I remember him for his gentleness, kindness, and sweet smile. Mary, I'm so incredibly sorry you lost your baby. Only God can give the grace, mercy, and love to someone who was hurting so badly, and it will be that grace, love, and mercy which will give you a chance to be with him again one day. Until then, I pray you can find some sense of peace and understanding in this tragedy. The obituary was written so beautifully. The stigma that comes with addiction and mental health will only continue if we don't talk about it in a way that makes it as common as heart disease or cancer, because it really truly is. My deepest sympathy to all of Nate's family.

“Nathan was the adorable and sweet boy I played with across the street when I was a kid. He had the best lego sets and matchbox cars. He was a mini boy version of his beautiful mother but with light eyes. He was fun and silly. I moved out of the neighborhood when I was 9. I crossed paths with Nate again Jr. High and Highschool. We talked about old times in the 3rd Street hood. He was a kind and smiling soul. Harmless and sweet. He got along with everyone and remained a neutral party to most situations that claimed a side whether in a good debate or in groups of people. He always saw both sides.

Now, I haven't seen Nate for a long time but as friends on social media I watched him share the things he loved and the things that caused him pain. I talked to him privately a few times about those things. I was always worried a bit for him knowing fully his struggle as I've seen it in those I love before. When I saw that he passed I knew what it meant for all of those left behind to now carry the pain he held. That's the crazy thing about this type of loss. His pain is gone but transferred to those he loves. He didn't mean for that to happen. He couldn't have known because he was just trying to figure out how to make his stop. As I sit here typing this his picture is looking right at me smiling away. I don't want to speak for him but I know that he never meant to hurt anyone.

This obituary was so beautifully written and honest. What an amazing tribute. It's okay to talk about it all. It's important to talk about it all. I lost my dad 13 years ago the same way. The root was addiction. Addiction doesn't discriminate. There's no doubt in my mind that he did the best he could for as long as he could. In his honor I'll continue to act when I see people struggling. I'll keep loving those who are hard to understand and love sometimes knowing they never wanted to be the way they are. I implore each of you reading this to do the same.
