“ One memory that I will remember for a lifetime from my dear old grandma, laughing so happily.. days before my graduation. I told her that I was accepted for my Masters in Teaching. She was flabbergasted... “Tiffany, I’m so proud of you, from that young sassy six year old to a twenty two year old women on her way to becoming an art teacher. You have come so far in your journey and keep on enjoying the little things that you love so much. The fact that you worked so hard to be so near your graduation, it just makes me look back on the hurdles you had to do, to be here. You will be such a fantastic teacher, take pride in your art work, personality, and continue being you as you go forward sweetie. I love you so much, and I’m so proud of you.”

From the women that dealt with my sassiness to now my pride in art, I will never forget her love, care, and teachings she’s told me.

Rest In Peace Grandma, make all the delicious peanut butter kiss cookies for everyone up in the pearly gates!
