“ Grandma, We will finally be putting you to rest on Monday and we now get to say goodbye. Although it's going to be very hard to do, I'm glad that you will finally get to be in your final resting place here, where you belong, in Oregon. There was never a doubt that you loved your family. You may have been a little tough sometimes, but it made us all a little tougher. You demonstrated a work ethic that is legendary. Your willingness to take on projects to help others will always stand out to me. Whether it was baking trays and trays of your amazing brownies and pecan caramel rolls for our church auction, or helping us strip and stain our windows on our house to knitting and crocheting anything and everything for anyone (especially the Villa), you always did everything with "get it done" attitude! No slacking! Even when you forced us grandkids to help make pounds and pounds of creamed corn at the restaurant because you ended up getting your hands on a truckload of fresh corn on the cob, and you couldn't let it go to waste, I still find myself looking back at that as a fond memory, it was time I got to spend with you. I will miss you more than you know. I will always love you Grandma. Love, Angie

“ Grandma, You were tough as nails, the ultimate field boss and baker extraordinaire. You taught me how to work hard and to strive for more. I wish I could send you postcards in heaven, but I guess I'll just have to fill you in on my adventures when I see you again.
Love you,Anna

“ Grandma, words cannot explain the love I have for you! Nor could they explain the love you had for me! Thank you so very much for constantly flooding me with love, wisdom, guidance, and knowledge of so many things! To marry a woman as strong as you, would be a grand blessing. Rest in the sweetest of peace and happiness up above the clouds. Remember to keep an eye out for me as I persevere forward in this life. You were an Angel here on Earth... Now you're truly an Angel for all you loved! Love you Grandma! Your loving grandson A.J.
